“Good News” Takes On a New Meaning

Dear Friends,

Our annual Dean’s Report is a chance to share good news with you, our alumni and friends who, year after year, invest in our community and make Richmond Law the truly special place that it is. This year, amidst a global pandemic, “good news” takes on a new meaning. It’s more important than ever to pause and celebrate our accomplishments — and to recognize the people who helped make those accomplishments possible.

From transitioning to an online learning environment in the spring to celebrating remotely our 150th anniversary in the fall, this year has been all about adapting. This year has also been about looking with fresh eyes on the structures of social justice in our community. In the months and years to come, I know we’ll continue this hard work together.

I’m grateful to you for supporting Richmond Law along this journey. From job placements for students who lost summer positions due to the pandemic, to financial contributions to support students in times of hardship, you stepped up to make a true impact on our community.

I look forward to celebrating our 150th Anniversary with you in person once public health permits. As we prepare for the next 150 to come, I’m excited to see what the future holds.

With gratitude,

A COVID Pivot

When faced with the start of the pandemic in March 2020, the key word for members of the Richmond Law community became “pivot”: from teaching methods to learning styles and everything in between, students and faculty received a fast lesson in how to adapt and be flexible.

Faculty quickly immersed themselves in online learning best practices, using the pandemic to their students’ educational advantage. Students in Professor Joel Eisen’s administrative law class, for example, undertook a project to analyze federal agencies’ responses to real-life issues brought about by the coronavirus. In Professor Jessica Erickson’s securities regulation course, students used the very technology that facilitated their new online learning environment – Zoom – as a case study in initial public offerings.

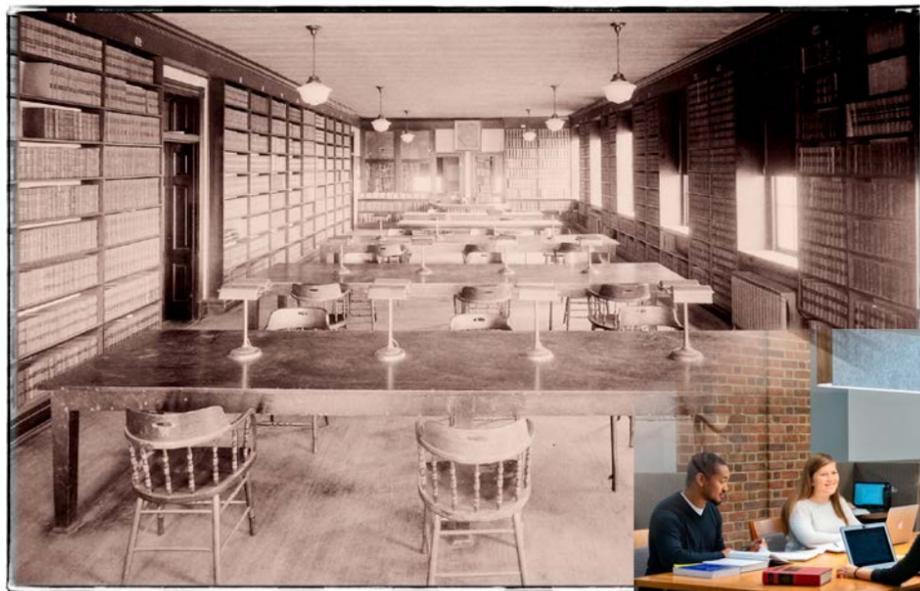

Students adapted to their new learning environments while also finding ways to support their local communities. Working through the Carrico Center for Pro Bono & Public Service, students partnered with the Virginia Poverty Law Center to support a statewide eviction legal helpline, and supported a COVID-19 conditional pardon project.

Meanwhile, alumni looked for ways to support students impacted by the pandemic, including contributing to a newly established Law Student Emergency Fund launched by the AccessLex Institute, and creating meaningful summer internships for students whose summer job experiences were canceled due to the coronavirus.

August brought most students back to campus – albeit masked and physically distanced. “The entire Richmond Law community has responded with such determination, empathy, and grace,” said Dean Wendy Perdue.

The events of 2020 provide a strange backdrop to celebrate a 150th anniversary. At the same time, now seems like a more appropriate time than ever to honor an institution that works to advance the cause of justice. As a law school, justice is at the heart of all we do. And in our shared work, we've accomplished something pretty remarkable together. We've built a community of lawyers who are fierce advocates for their clients; who give back to their communities; who think critically and act ethically to serve their profession. We're proud and grateful you're a part of this community. The world needs great lawyers, and our graduates have met that need for the past 150 years. Here's to the next 150!

A Legacy to Remember

When Nancy Litchfield Hicks, L'85, and her husband Hal Hicks decided to establish a scholarship at Richmond Law, it was with the hope of making a legal education affordable — particularly for first-generation students.

A first-generation law student herself, Nancy was a member of the Richmond Law Review, and was known for her deep kindness, sharp mind, and warm presence. She practiced real estate and general corporate law for 12 years before transitioning to stay home with her three sons — Joshua, Matthew (R'15), and William.

Nancy Hicks passed away in August 2020, and the Nancy Litchfield Hicks (L'85) Memorial Scholarship will honor her memory and legacy while supporting students for generations to come.

A Dream Fellowship

For Aisha Sanallah, L'22, a position working for Special Olympics International was a dream job she didn't expect so early in her career. But that's just where she found herself thanks to hard work and a Summer Public Service Fellowship. Aisha remotely helped the legal team with contract review while learning about in-house counsel positions.

The fellowship broke down financial barriers for Aisha: "The fellowship is 100% of the reason I could accept a job with Special Olympics," she said.

Not all students had positions that could transition to a remote environment. When some were left without fellowship opportunities, our alumni stepped in to help, identifying pro bono and public service positions. "Through their generosity in making gifts and hiring students, alumni and friends made it possible for 258 of 267 1L and 2L students to secure a position," said Janet D. Hutchinson, Associate Dean for Career Development. "We join our students in saying 'thank you' for helping connect them with substantive legal experience, especially during this most unusual summer."

A Day of Giving

Janice Moore, L'81, pictured here with fellow Law Advisory Board Member and University Trustee Wendell Taylor, L'98, sponsored a Day of Giving challenge to inspire fellow alumni to support the Law School.

The University's Annual Day of Giving may have been postponed due to the pandemic — but the delay didn't dampen your generosity.

Janice Moore, L'81, kicked things off with a challenge in honor of the 150th anniversary, giving every 10 donors the opportunity to unlock $10,000 up to $150,000. Moore was so inspired by the enthusiastic participation of alumni and friends that she increased her challenge to $200,000.

Faculty and staff got in on the fun thanks to a $5,000 matching grant and a $5,000 bonus match from Jim Gibson, Sesquicentennial Professor of Law, and Corinna Lain, the S. D. Roberts & Sandra Moore Professor of Law.

All told, you made an impact with gifts totaling over $350,000!

The Dean's Opportunity Scholarship Program

THANKS TO A FOUNDATIONAL GIFT FROM DEAN WENDY PERDUE AND HER HUSBAND, DAVID, A NEW SCHOLARSHIP FUND WILL MAKE A RICHMOND LAW EDUCATION AFFORDABLE AND ACCESSIBLE TO DESERVING STUDENTS IN NEED.

The Dean's Opportunity Scholarship Fund will support students on the basis of financial need, academic excellence, perseverance in the face of adversity, and potential for leadership in the profession.

"Our students graduate with an average debt approaching $100,000," Perdue said. "That debt burden deters some students from the legal profession and makes it harder for students who want to devote themselves to public service to do so. The goal of this fund is to open the door to deserving students who have significant need — and significant potential to contribute to the profession."

After Perdue's initial pledge of $100,000, the fund has already grown to more than $750,000 with the support of alumni and others. Donors can sponsor a scholar with a gift of $10,000 per year for three years.

87% A whopping 87% of the Class of 2023 received a scholarship to support their legal education this year – the highest percentage ever! Your gifts help make law school a reality for some of the best and brightest future lawyers.

“Attending the University of Richmond Law School is one of the greatest privileges I've ever had in my life. It gave me an opportunity to practice law with a passion and commitment to help others. This year, along with the help of many of our classmates, we have proudly established the Class of 1980 Scholarship Fund to afford others the same opportunity we had to attend one of the highest rated law schools in the country. I look forward to continuing to support Richmond Law now and for many years to come.”

Why do my wife and I give? Two quotes say it all. First, 'Where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.' Second, 'Put your money where your mouth is.' Well, my heart and my mouth have been at UR Law since 2004.”

“Richmond Law provided a wonderful foundation for my legal career. Faculty, course work, and activities helped me develop the skills needed to begin my career. Since my graduation, the Law School has continued to offer more and diverse programs, scholarships, and fellowships to develop a well-rounded lawyer. I choose to support the Law School so that current and future law students will have the opportunity to engage in these experiences which will provide them the skill set needed to be confident starting their own legal career.”
